

CADMS Seminar Series*

Faculty, Staff and Students

School of Veterinary Medicine

You are cordially invited – Mark your calendars!

Title: Biosecurity at the Margins: Engaging Remote and Diverse Communities in Northern Australia

Invited Speaker: Prof. Ruth Wallace

Director – The Northern Institute,

Charles Darwin University, Australia

Prof. Wallace is the Director of the Northern Institute at Charles Darwin University and is working at Kansas State University for 6 months as a Fulbright Distinguished Chair in Agriculture and Life Sciences. Prof. Wallace's research focuses on marginalized learners' identities and the intersections with educational systems in regional and remote areas of Northern Australia, and is predominantly undertaken with Aboriginal people. Her stay in the US will contribute to the "Biosecurity Policy at the Margins Project". This project is an opportunity to understand and articulate the ways that remote communities can contribute to and partner in the effective delivery of plant biosecurity surveillance. She is also interested in integrated approaches to research for healthy regional communities and opportunities for partnership in the future.

Further information:

<http://www.cdu.edu.au/northern-institute/our-teams/ruth-wallace>

12:00 p.m. – 1 p.m., 1047 Valley Hall

Wednesday, May 31th, 2017

Organized by the Center for Animal Disease Modeling and Surveillance (CADMS)

If you have any questions or comments please contact Beatriz Martinez Lopez (beamartinezlopez@ucdavis.edu) or Alda Pires (apires@ucdavis.edu)